Covaleskie opened ouble to left centre and was second while Peck threw out tent Covaleskie to third with a hot single off Keatte. After Cobb stole second Crawford walked and stole feach hit over Keating's head since Stroug showed signs of flagging.

Vaughn and the other Cubs were MLarry but in the fifth he had to fan Sam Crawford with second and third occupied. Passes to Bush and Cobb, steals by both and a bad peg by Nunamaker had caused the danger. Caldwell had no more trouble until the eighth, though Cove eskie doubled with one out in the seventh. In the eighth Caldwell walked Cobb and Ty stole second after Crawford had filed to Cook. A wild pitch put Ty on third. Veach walked and also stole. Kavanaugh fanned for the second out. Young, with two strikes against him. Bit just out of Peckinpaugh's reach and Cobb scored. Veach taking third. Stanage then hit a single off Maisel's glove and Veach counted. The score:

The eagerness with which the crowd piled into the concert hall of the New York Theatre to see the finish of this notable battle of cues suggested a prizefight rather than a gentle billiard match. The sting of strife was prevalent throughout and the competitors reeled from the onslaughts of each other in turn, while the spectators, all thorough turn, while the spectators, all thoroug enthusiasts, cheered each telling stroke as though it were a left jab or a hard right swing. Moore, starting with a lead of 9 points gained in two nights play, had only to make the regulation 50, while De Oro needed 59 to regain the championship. As on the first night De Oro began with easy confidence to roll up points, while Moore was in a streak of hard luck and could not make the balls respond to his coaxing. The first goat getter was a 3 by De Oro in his first journey to the table against a zero by the champion. Moore got in one 3 in the fifth inning, but after that his efforts resulted in zeros or bingles that were well scattered. It was in the eighteenth inning that

De Oro initiated the brilliant run which caused him to pass into the leadership. He counted in six successive innings, with the result that at the twenty-third he had a grand total of 113 to 106 for Moore. In that short space he had changed a deficit of 9 into an advantage of 7

Undaunted by the prowess of his op-ponent, Moore gathered himself to-gether and counting rapidly went into the lead again with a run of four in the the shouting as he scored until at the fifty-seventh he had a lead of eight, 140 That was the expiring effort of the Twenty-five Pledged to Football. Twenty-five candidates signed yester-day to report for varsity football at Columbia when the call is made next September. The books will be kept open for the next two weeks in the hope that others will forget the examination ogre that has invaded the campus and let their thoughts turn to the revived football team. The new list is being compiled because the restrictions made. by the various committees have made the previous list of promised candi-dates, totalling 306, useless.

visitors guessing and their lone tally came on two misplays and a sacrifice fly. The score:

Alex Aberg, world's champion at the Græco-Roman style, who has posted $1,000 as a prize to any man who can evade a fall for one hour, was naturally enough the centre of greatest interest.

It took Aberg exactly fifty-eight seconds to pin down the shoulders of Fritz

Mohl of Switzerland. The fall was accomplished by a reverse head lock.

One of the most exciting bouts of the evening was that between William Berner, German champion, and K Kospinil, the Bohemian title holder. This was the only match that resulted in a draw. The men grappled twenty minutes without a fall. As each bout is limited to two ten minute periods, with a minute's rest between, the pair will have to settle the matter of supremacy in a later test.

Pierre Le Colosse, the French cham-

Westerners in the second and ninth innings.

In the second inning Benton singled and Maltby sacrificed. Labadie drove Denovan's error, and Labadie and Waltz singled.

Sheehy robbed Keating of a double in the fourth. Starting with the crack of the bat, he rushed up behind second, caught the ball a few inches from the ground and then turned a complete somersault.
